Newlyweds and self-proclaimed "power couple" Gabi Epstein and Jeremy Lapalme are two of Canada's most sought-after stage and cabaret performers having graced the stages of

Ontario, Quebec, Manitoba, Alberta, New York, and even Dubai. Gabi is best known for playing Audrey in "Little Shop of Horrors" at the Stratford Festival, Fanny Brice in "Funny Girl" at the Segal Centre & Harold Green Jewish Theatre, and appeared in "Once" with Mirvish, while Jeremy has delighted audiences at Stage West Calgary in "Spamalot" as well as playing Seymour in "Little Shop of Horrors" and Charlie Brown in "You're a Good Man, Charlie Brown" at the Rose Theatre.

This year, not letting the pandemic bring them down, they have been performing virtually for audiences all over the world.
